Nancy Skinner
Sincerely,

The GO! Network for Healthy Kids will serve as a model and catalyst for regional wellness and livability. I support this proposal and hope it receives favorable consideration.

The East Bay Regional Park District's facilities are used by 14 million visitors a year. Expanding the District's reach into our education and health care communities will further enhance the wellness and health of the East Bay - particularly in the urban corridors of Richmond and Oakland where families have limited safe outdoor options. Connecting the District's role in our community with schools and health care providers will help reduce health care costs for employers, address chronic diseases before they happen, enhance the quality of life for residents, and provide schools additional resources.

The GO! Network has several key components. It will train teachers and school district staff in the health related value of outdoor activity, promote and institutionalize the model California Children's Outdoor Bill of Rights, and shed light on transportation and policy barriers which can deter children and families from experiencing the outdoors. Ultimately, the GO! Network will provide a transformative program to promote outdoor activity, increase communitywide awareness of opportunities to move outside and reduce park access barriers.

The GO! Network brings together the West Contra Costa County Unified School District, Oakland Unified School District, the U.C. Berkeley Center for Weight and Health, Children's Hospital in Oakland, Alameda County Office of Education and EcoVillage. This well-rounded collaborative uniquely addresses the Community Transformation Grant strategic directive number two - Active Living and Healthy Eating - in the impacted communities of Richmond and Oakland, California.

I am writing in support of the East Bay Regional Park District's application to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention's Community Transformation Grant (CTG) to lead a multi-sector collaborative - the Get Outdoors! (GO!) Network for Healthy Kids - to further strengthen the relationship between health, education and outdoor activity providers.
