Thurgood Marshall Regional Park – Home of the Port Chicago 50 in Concord was recently named to honor Thurgood Marshall and the 50 Black sailors he represented during their trial. The sailors were survivors of a devastating explosion while loading munitions onto Port Chicago's naval ships in July 1944. The explosion killed 320 enlisted men, mostly African American, and the 50 sailors protested against the unsafe and unjust working conditions. Marshall later became the first Black U.S. Supreme Court Justice.
